Adam & Eve

And the woman said unto the serpent, We may eat of the fruit of the trees of the garden.

But of the fruit of the tree which is in the midst of the garden, God hath said, Ye shall not eat of it, neither shall you touch it, lest ye die.

And the serpent said unto the woman, Ye shall not surely die: For God doth know that in the day ye eat thereof, then your eyes shall be opened, and ye shall be as gods, knowing good and evil.

And when the woman saw that the tree was good for food, and that was pleasant to the eyes, and a tree to be desired to make one wise, she took of the fruit thereof, and did eat, and gave also into her husband with her; and he did eat.

And the eyes of them both were opened, and they knew they were naked; And they sewed fig leaves together, and made themselves aprons. Genesis 3:2-7 KJV

ARTIST INSIGHTS & COMMENTS
